VARIETY.

Don't despise your poor relations. They might get rich some time and then it would be so hard to explain things. An intelligent German thus expressed his dislike to a quack doctor-" I vouldn't call him iv mine cut was dead !" What is the difference between a celebrated song by Lord Byzon and a tallow candle !- One is " Maid of Athens," the other is Made of Grease. A sailor who jumped overboard to save another was asked if he was fit to die. "I could not be more fit," he replied, "by declining to do my duty." "Throwed up the sponge, did he?" said Mrs. Spilking, as she finished reading an account of a prise-fighter. "Why, he might a knowed he couldn't keep a sponge on his stomach. What did he swallow it for, any-how ?" Many mothers are either compelled to stay away from church and theatre or take their babies with them. A poor woman took her little one in her arms to hear a famous preacher. The loud voice from the platform awoke the child and made it cry, and its mother got up and was leaving the hall when the minister stopped her by saying. " My good woman, dbn't go away. The baby doesn't disturb me." " It isn't for that, sir, I leave," she replied unconsciously sarcastic, "It's because you disturb the

A good story is told of a Church dignitary in midland eathedral city. He is very deaf, and, when he goes out to dinner, fortifies himself with an eartrampet. The other day some early peas from Seilly were being served, and the dignitary, astonished at the sight of them, asked the man-servant a question about them, and put up his trumpet to receive the answer. The servant had never seen an eartrumpet before, and, thinking that the diguitary had invented a new sort of dish, poured the peas, butter and all, into the trumpet.

When a new Pope is elected he decides for himself by what usme be shall be called. After the present Pope had been chosen and the Conclave was about to be opened for the admission of some privileged persons, it is related that Monsignor Lazagni (proeretary of State during the Conclave) recollected that the title by which the new pope was to be proclaimed was yet unknown. "By what name," he nsked, "does your Holiness choose to be made known ?" "Who is the patron saint of to-day ?" " St. Lec." " Then announce me as Leo XIII."

While in Algeria a mighty hunter went off on a long excursion accompanied by a native guide whose face and manner were not too inspiring of confidence. They had scant luck, provisions ran short, and the guide proposed to his employer a dish of broiled monkey. "I don't know," said the European, though he was hungry; " what does it taste like?" "It's tenderer than man, but not so juley," replied the guide, in the most matter-of-fact manner. The Europeau at once broke up camp and returned homeward, insisting on carrying his own gun and having

In 1742 William Polteney, who the year before had been one of the most popular patriots of modeen times, and distinguished in Parliament by his powerful opposition to the measures of Walpole's administration, dwindled into the Earl of Bath. Sir Robert Walpole, whom he had driven to the helm, laid the snare for him, and Pulteney fell into it. On the first meeting of those two celebrated men, after their respective falls up stairs, Lord Orford said to Lord Bath, with malleious good humor, " My lord, you and I are now the two most insignificant fellows in Europe."

It is not generally known that at one bank in London luncheon is provided gratuitously to the entire staff of managers and clerks. The Baroness Burdett-Coutts heard one day of the difficulties attending going out to lunch at Coutts' Bank, and she at once ordered that a diningroom should be fitted and luncheon served in becoming style. Fifteen of the staff sit down together, and so on until every man in the place has partaken of the meal. The clerk calculate that by this act of kindness on the part of the Baroness they save £50 a-year out of their sala-ries, which are liberal.

The proverb, "Those who live in glass houses should not throw stones," dates back to the Union of England and Scotland, at which time London was inundated with Scotchmen. This did not please the Duke of Buckingham, who organised a movemen against them, and parties were formed who wen about nightly to break their windows. In retalia tion, a party of Scotchmen smashed the windows of the Duke's mansion, which stood in St. Martin's Fields, and had so many windows that it went by the name of the Ginss House. The Duke appealed to the King, who replied, "Steenie, Steenie, those wha live in glass houses should be carfu' how they

Some time since a friar came to a French town in order to preach a sermon upon a certain occasion. His sermon went off tolerably well, and the friar was hospitably received. The next day to his great dismay, be was told that it was a holiday in honor of the pairon saint of the town, and that all the congregation were assembling in the church in order to listen to the new sermon he was expected to deliver. The poor friar had brought only one sermon with him, and that was already delivered. What was be to do? He got into the pulpit, and, looking very solomnly round the church, " My brethren," said he, "certain malignant persons have said there was beresy in the sermon I delivered to you yesterday; and, in order to show how false is this accusation, I propose to deliver it to you all over again."
